

Brix Artwork Brief

GigResource · 8 October 2026 · For the designer producing the Brix character files

What this is. Brix is the GigResource mascot. There is one character per event type. When a client posts an event and picks the type, that character stays with the event on every screen until the event is finished. There are 39 characters in all, and every one of them already exists as a concept image. This brief is only about turning those concepts into files the website can use.

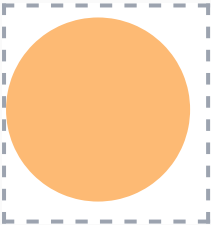

1. The one change that matters most: no circles

Every concept image so far has the character sitting on a coloured circle, baked into the picture. Please send the character on its own, with a transparent background, and no circle.

The reason is that the website draws the circle itself. That way:

- the circle can be tinted to match the page it is on;
- the site's dark mode can give it a different treatment, which a baked-in circle cannot do;
- the same file works on a card, in a list, in the chatbot and on the confirmation screen without a second version;
- a character can be shown without a circle where the design calls for it.

Instead of drawing the circle, please tell us the colour you intended for each one. Section 4 explains the format.

The dashed square is the file, 512 by 512 and transparent. The shaded circle is the one the website draws behind the character.

Keep the whole character inside that circle. On small screens the site crops to it, so anything outside is cut off. Nothing should touch the edges of the square.

2. File specification

ITEM	WHAT WE NEED
Format	PNG with a real transparent background (alpha channel). Not a white background, and not JPG.
Size	512 by 512 pixels, square. This covers every use on the site, including high resolution screens.
Framing	Head and shoulders only. Forward facing, eyes open, centred, no body below the chest.
Safe area	The whole character inside the circle that fits in the square. A small gap all round, nothing touching the edges.
Edges	Clean anti-aliased edges with no white fringe. A white outline is the most common export mistake and it shows badly on a coloured circle.
Weight	Under roughly 150 KB per file. Many of them load on one page.
Naming	Exactly as listed in sections 5 and 6, for example <code>BRIX-ID01-WEDDING.png</code> . All capitals, hyphens, no spaces.
Also useful	A second set at 128 by 128, same names in a folder called <code>small</code> . Helpful but not essential.
Source files	If the layered or vector originals exist, please include them. They let us make new sizes later without coming back to you.

3. Consistency across all 39

These will sit next to each other in lists, so small differences are obvious. Please keep the following identical on every character:

- the head at the same size and the same position on the canvas;
- the same camera angle, straight on;
- the same eye size and expression, except the celebration pose;
- the same line weight and level of detail.

Only the hat, the clothing and the accessories should change between them.

4. The colour codes we need back

Because the site draws the circle, we need the colour as a code rather than as a picture. For each of the 39, please send:

- one flat colour as a hex code, for example #EA580C ; or
- two hex codes if the circle is a gradient, the start and the end.

A plain list of ID, name and code is all we need. The tables in sections 5 and 6 have a blank column for exactly this.

We tried reading the colours off the sheets already sent, but the backgrounds are gradients inside a compressed image and the values came back wrong, so they have to come from the source files.

Colours that are already fixed and must not be changed

These five belong to account types, not events, and the website already uses them. They are listed so the event colours do not accidentally clash with them.

ACCOUNT TYPE	COLOUR	CODE

5. Batch one: 24 characters, needed first

These match event types the site offers today, so they go to work the moment they arrive. Please start here.

6. Batch two: 15 characters, please hold

These are drawn, but the website does not yet offer the matching event type, so nothing would ever show them. That decision sits with Peter. Please do not produce these until he confirms. If he adds the event types, the whole batch is needed exactly as listed.

ID	CHARACTER	FILE NAME	CIRCLE COLOUR
ID05	Bachelor Party	BRIX-ID05-BACHELOR-PARTY.png

ID31	Paint & Sip	BRIX-ID31-PAINT-SIP.png

7. Two extra pieces, and five you do not need to draw

FILE	WHAT IT IS
BRIX-GUIDE.png	The plain Brix with no hat and no accessories . Used for general help, the chatbot when it is not talking about a particular event, empty pages and error pages.
BRIX-CELEBRATION.png	The same plain Brix in a happy or celebrating pose, for the screen a client sees after a booking is confirmed. Only needed if it is a different drawing.

A saving worth knowing about. The original guide also mentions a Brix per account type, in five colours. Because the website now draws the circle itself, those five do not need to be drawn. The plain Brix above, on a circle coloured by the site, covers all five. That is five fewer drawings for the same result.

8. Rules that must hold

- Brix never replaces a real person's profile photo.
- Brix never sits on or beside a price, a deposit, a balance, a signature or a payment button.
- One event type has exactly one character. No alternates, no seasonal variants.
- No numbers, dates or years on any character. A character is used for every event of that type, so a number would be wrong most of the time.
- The general Religious Ceremony character carries no symbol of any single faith. Particular faiths already have their own characters.

Do not draw a character for Memorial or Celebration of Life. The website offers that event type and it will deliberately show no mascot at all. Those pages stay plain.

9. One correction to the keyword sheet

On the sheet of the eight new characters, ID34 Quinceañera lists Sweet 16 among its keywords. Sweet 16 already belongs to ID08. Since one event type can only have one character, please remove Sweet 16 from ID34 and leave it with Quinceañera, Quince Party and 15th Birthday.

10. Delivery checklist

- 24 PNG files from section 5, named exactly as listed.
- `BRIX-GUIDE.png` , and `BRIX-CELEBRATION.png` if it is a separate drawing.
- A list of the circle colours as hex codes, one line per ID.
- Optional: the same files at 128 by 128 in a folder named `small` .
- Optional: the layered or vector source files.
- Batch two only once Peter confirms the event list.

Questions on anything here can come back through Peter. The character designs themselves are already approved; this brief covers only how the files are produced and delivered.
